

Alex Dumas Broker Associate

Alex Dumas came to Olive Real Estate Group following a successful career as a residential real estate broker with ERA Shields Real Estate in Colorado Springs, CO. After four years in the residential field and winning numerous production awards, he decided to leave the residential brokerage business to his former associate to focus solely on the commercial side of real estate.

Alex has a background in commercial property and casualty insurance, a domain he got into after completing his degrees at Dartmouth College. At Dartmouth, he double-majored in Mathematics and Economics, while lettering in Varsity hockey all four years. A native of Montreal, Canada, Alex is also fluent in French, which is his native tongue.

In addition to real estate, Alex serves as President of the Board of Directors for Safe Passage, one of the local Children's Advocacy Centers and also sits on the Zoo Ball Committee, one of the major fund raising events for the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo.

Prior to his real estate career, Alex was a professional hockey player. After four seasons in the minor leagues playing in the Florida Panthers and Edmonton Oilers organizations, he was named Best Defenseman of his team 3 times and was voted onto the All-Star team once. In his spare time, he enjoys golf, squash, and hockey. Alex is married and has two step daughters.
